He retired from the army The Most Sacred of the Year

He began by expressing his respect, not only for the veterans gathered to hear him, but also for the men they had fought, and he told why he felt it. "You could not stand up day after day, in those indecisive contests where overwhelming victory was impossible because neither side would run as they ought when beaten, without getting at last something of the same brotherhood for the enemy that the north pole of a magnet has for the south, each working in an opposite sense to the other, but unable to get along without the other." Such scorn as he felt he reserved for those who had stood aside when the call came for commitment. "I think that, as life is action and passion, it is required of a man that he should share the passion and action of his time at peril of

LETTER FROM THE COMMANDER

EAR BROTHERS:

I believe May 23rd, will be a red-letter day for Camp Picacho Peak! I really expect the largest turn-out of any luncheon we've had. Why? I've had over 15 new inquires about the SUVCW in the past two months. Fantastic!

The largest attendance we've had, was over a year ago- 39 people. Bring your wives, relatives and good friends. We're going to have an excellent lunch and an outstanding speaker!

However, lest we forget, 2 days after our meeting Memorial Day is observed. This is a very important day for all true American patriots to remember and honor the men and women who served their country so valiantly from 1776 to 1998. Whether from East, West, North or South, we are all Americans who love this country.

Let us all cherish and honor, what our forefathers gave us.

In Fraternity, Charity, and Loyalty, Larry Fuller, Commander Camp Picacho Peak #1

being judged not to have lived." Memorial Day was for him and his listeners "the most sacred of the year," and he believed it would continue to be observed with pride and reverence. "But even if I am wrong, even if those who are to come after us are to forget all that we hold dear, and the future is to teach and kindle its children in ways as yet unrevealed, it is enough for us that to us this day is dear and sacred.... For one hour, twice a year at least-at the regimental dinner, where the ghosts sit at table more numerous than the living, and on this day when we decorate their graves- the dead come back and live with us. I see them now, more that I can number, as once I saw them on this earth." He saw them, and he saw what they stood for, even now in the midst of what Mark Twain had dubbed the Gilded Age. "The generation that carried on the war has been set aside by its experience. Through our great good fortune, in our youth our hearts were touched with fire. It was given to us to learn at the outset that life is a profound and passionate thing. While we are permitted to scorn nothing but indifference, and do not pretend to undervalue the worldly rewards of ambition, we have seen with our own eyes, beyond and above the gold fields, the snowy heights of honor, and it is for us to bear the report to those who come after us."

Shelby Foote describes a speech given by Captain Holmes, at Keene, New Hampshire in 1884.

Captain Holmes had once yelled at President Lincoln, while the President was standing high on the parapet of Fort Stevens, "Get down, you damn fool!"
